COMMONWEALTH SWAMPS WESTMORELAND CLUB TEAM

COMMONWEALTH DEFEATS RIVALS

Yesterday's 'Annual Clash a Funereal Affair for the Westmoreland Cohorts, Justice Crutchfield Performs Beautifully and Receives the Plaudits of Crowd.

OBITUARY: nwealth, G.

"Hark from the tombs, a doleft ound," was a merry French chanmette compared to the gloom which enveloped the cohorts of Westmoreland at the ball game at Broad Street Park yesterday afternoon.

It was sad beyond the expression funereal sentences, and the means roans of the slaughtered broke on the evening air like the cries of

"Why didn't your wife come?" asked a Westmoreland man of a brother

"Because she don't understand the game," he replied.

'That's no excuse, for our team don't either," was the cruel retort.

That just about summed up the situation, for Commonwealth literally put it all over the lads from the Grace Street club, and took them into camp without turning a hair.

It is true that not single run of the six scored by Commonwealth was carned, but the errors made by Westnoreland were so numerous and costly that hits were luxuries, not necessities, and the voyage around bases was not necounted a dangerous, or even a

This was the Commonwealth idea, but not so with the yellow and black. Westmoreland player reach a haven of rest on sec-ond, and so pleased was he at the un-expected feat that he remained there, willing for third, but sti'l afraid to

On the other hand, the ancient and grayhaired Ellyson, standing some geven feet in altitude, proved a verita-cidentally knocked large dents in the ball on several occasions; at shortstop a debonair young stockhroker, Leich by name, handled both the short and long end; in left-field Mr. Tigker Harrison annexed everything except a redhot stove, while Mr. Julian Hill, as backstop, proved a mountain of weight, catching high fouls with all the case and dexterity of a chicken pirate. It was a mighty aggregation of ball players—that Commonwealth crowd—and having found a soft thing or shoes, agreed unanimously.

Long before the hour appinted for the execution arrived, society, which writes its name with a big S, began to arrive and giggle in the grandstand. Every one in the Blue Book, and not in jail, was present from the bandsome young baritone singer, who and not in jall, was present from the handsome young baritone singer, who looks like Kyrle Bellew, even to members of the City Council. Ladies were there without number, young and—some not so young, waving flags, wearing colors and selling peanuts and other equally dainty refreshments, such as chewing gum.

The debutantes, who had charge of this hold-up," declined to see a smaller coin than a quarter and for that insignificant sum presented the former owner with a bag of peanuts and a sweet smile, both of a fleeting nature.

When it was at last discovered that all the money insthe crowd had been correled, and that not even carfare remained in the pockets of the helpies males, the game was called, and the agony commenced.

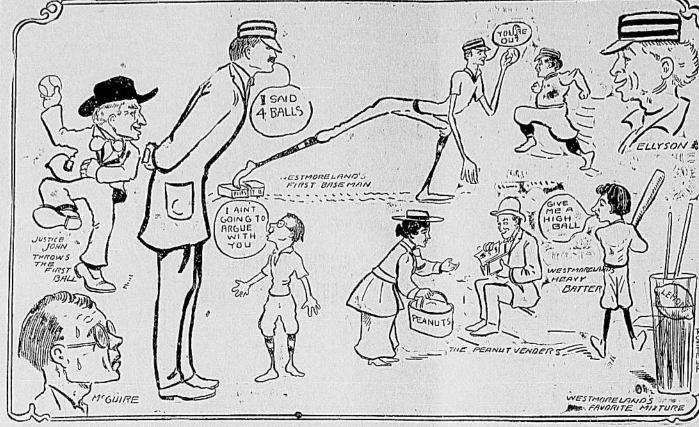

Then it was that the crowd yelled itself hoarse and made the air resound.

agony commenced.

Then it was that the crowd yelled itself hoarse and made the air resound with tunnituous cheers, for from a secluded nook there suddenly appeared, with true theatrical effect, no less a personage than the Rishit Hon, Justice John Crutchfield, who ambled to the pitcher's box and stood for a few all too brief moments, nonchalantly accepting the plaudits of the multitude. With scarcely an effort, with all the ease and grace of a skilled athlete, which rushed in its mad flight some fwo, yards towards the plate, and rolled sold with the precision and dexterity of the owner of an eagle eye, he tossed the ball, which rushed in its mad flight some fwo, yards towards the plate, and rolled slowly but securely into the mit of the alert backstop. Like the pressing of the Sold button at the Jamestown Exposition by President Roosevelt, this selemn function opened the obsequies, and the slaughter was on.

This is the history of the carnage, enlivened at times by the triumphant yells of the Commonwealth men, as their players piled up the runs. A band of the electraised up their voices now and then, singing ribald songs in a way that greatly incensed such aged Westmoreland members as Judge Scott, Major A, B, Williams and Captain Willard, all of whom were mourning.

If "Professor" Murray M. McGuire, the one time hero of the University of Wirginia bail team, had been given a ghost of support, this tale of sorrow might never have been written, but, alas, the "Professor" could not inspire his celestial allies, who juggled the ball in true Chinese fashion and fanned the air like windmills.

Danville Scored her first run in the third inning on an error. Reggy, the first man up, connected for a single and went to second on a sacrifice hit by Doyle, and to third on a grounder by Hicks. McKevitt hit an easy one to O'Nell, who let the spihere go through him, scoring Reggy.

In the fourth, the fireworks were discharged. Henn singled, stole second and scored on Hessler's single to left-field, Hessler going to second on the throw to the plate. Ryan walked and Ham attempted to bunt and laid an easy one in the hands of Long. The pitcher, in an effort to catch Hessier at third sailed the ball far over into the left bleachers, and before it could be recovered all three runners had circled the bases amid the plaudits and laughter of the spectators.

Richmond's only chance to win the game after this was in the eighth, when Titman walked and was forecased out at second on Reeve's single. Heffron singled, advancing Reeve to second. Wallace hit a pratty three-land langer, scoring the two runners, and coming home himself on a high fly
